

Parents and families: empowering children and communities for the future.

Parents are a child’s first and most influential teacher. In the early years, they are building a foundation for all future learning. Parents and families all share a dream of success and happiness for their children. Their experience raising children makes their voice of support authentic and heartfelt.

How do you envision your role as a supporter of young children?

